Ground broken by Bentley for new Waltham campus

APRIL 24 will be recorded as one of the truly significant dates in the history of Bentley College. On that day, a major educational asset was entered in the journal of progress for the growing institution as ground was broken for a new suburban campus in Waltham, Mass.

The historic event attracted an enthusiastic audience of 1,000 in weather that was perfect for the occasion. It was an encouraging start for the practical-minded officials of the 48-year-old professional college of accounting and finance, led by President Thomas L. Morison and Senior Vice President and Dean Rae D. Anderson, who had to consider every aspect of the balance sheet before undertaking the present massive project.

At stake is a 25-million-dollar price tag to develop a 102-acre site during the next 20 years. Immediate action calls for the construction, in one dramatic sweep, of 12 buildings to be ready for the academic year starting in 1968. This Phase I activity alone will cost almost 10-million dollars.

Everything on the ledger sheets dictated taking positive steps. After long and careful study had revealed that Bentley's location of almost a half century in the Back Bay Section of Boston (just opposite the recently opened Prudential Center) offered too limited opportunities for its expanding enrollment (now 4,000, including 1,500 in the Day Division and 2,500 in the Evening Division), the decision was made to seek a new environment. The Lyman Estate, an appealing wooded tract in Waltham, just a few miles west of Boston, appeared to be the ideal solution. When the campus is completed, it will be able to accommodate 6,000 students (2,000 Day and 4,000 Evening). The college will continue to maintain an Evening Division in Boston.

President Morison officiated during the ground-breaking ceremonies. The college was officially welcomed into the community by Waltham Mayor Austin D. Rhodes. Dean Anderson cited the architectural firm of Perry, Shaw, Hepburn and Dean for the Georgian designs it developed. Maj. Gen. Paul J. Mozzicato, E 53, military aide to Gov. John A. Volpe who was unable to attend, read a telegraphed message from the governor.

In his remarks to the audience, President Morison said, "To provide the complete educational opportunity the college is capable of offering, by reason of remarkable faculty talents, and to achieve full recognition among her sister institutions at the college level, Bentley College must create a permanent educational climate and environment consistent with her current stature and abilities.

"Long and careful study proved that urban Boston within itself could not satisfy the demands of the ideal college experience. An exhaustive search resulted — in late 1963 — in the acquisition of a suburban campus site of rare natural beauty, seemingly sheltered and remote, yet readily accessible to all of the advantages and opportunities offered by this important metropolitan area.

"The Bentley College of today stands on the threshold of complete fulfillment."

AFTERNOON ground-breaking ceremonies last April 24 were heightened by the disclosure in the evening of a quarter-of-a-million dollar gift from a California alumnus.

Solomon R. Baker, chairman of the board and president of Baker Industries, Beverly Hills, Calif., pledged a gift of $250,000, according to an announcement made during a post ground-breaking banquet at the Algonquin Club by Henry E. Rauch, board chairman of Burlington Industries and chairman of the college's Golden Anniversary Fund campaign.

Although Mr. Baker, an alumnus of the Evening Division of 1924, was unable to attend the day's program, his reasons for making the gift were read by Rae D. Anderson, senior vice president and dean.

Mr. Baker cited the seven following objectives achieved by Bentley that inspired him to help the college: (1) it has continued, since its founding, to provide higher education to students of average means, (2) it has dedicated itself to effective teaching, (3) it has prepared graduates for professional careers in the shortest possible time, (4) it has trained its graduates to "produce" in their first job assignments, (5) it has continued to educate each of its graduates to progress within the limits of his individual abilities and motivations, (6) it has taught the

"how" as well as the "why" of professional work, and (7) it has conducted its year-to-year operations on a self-sustaining basis.

The Board of Trustees, at a special meeting earlier in the day, voted to formally establish the Baker Vanguard, a society to honor outstanding leaders, including individuals, corporations, and foundations which aid the college in the creation of its Waltham campus. The Trustees named Mr. Baker honorary president of the society and designated the new library, focal point of the Waltham campus, the Baker Vanguard Library.

This $1,450,000 structure will measure 45,000 square feet and will rise atop a 218-foot hill. The library's tower will soar another 130 feet and be visible from Boston. The building will be able to seat 700 students and have a book capacity of 150,000 with expansion possibilities to 250,000.

The other 11 structures in the first phase of the development program will total another 305,000 square feet of brick and mortar in Georgian architecture. These other facilities include the following:

A 64,000 square-foot classroom building ($1,350,000), a 44,000 square-foot classroom building ($1,100,000), a 57,000 square-foot faculty and administration building ($1,200,000), a 34,000 square-foot dining hall ($1,000,000), and a seven-unit dormitory complex containing 93,000 square-feet ($2,100,000) to accommodate 491 students.

Rauch and Campbell appointed

Named to the major leadership roles in Golden Anniversary Fund drive

HENRY E. RAUCH, chairman of the board of Burlington Industries, Inc., Greensboro, N.C., and Edwin D. Campbell, executive vice president of Itek Corporation, Waltham, have been named to top leadership roles in the $3,500,000 drive at Bentley College.

Announcement of Mr. Rauch's appointment as general chairman and Mr. Campbell's appointment as national organization chairman was made by President Thomas L. Morison who said Bentley's Golden Anniversary Fund campaign will be conducted during the next two years, culminating in 1967, the college's 50th anniversary.

HENRY E. RAUCH

The Anniversary Fund drive is part of $25,000,000 needed during the next 20 years to relocate and expand the college on a new suburban campus in Waltham, Mass. The college plans to move from its present location in the Back Bay Section of Boston by the fall of 1968.

Mr. Rauch, an alumnus of Bentley (E 24) and a native of Boston, has been in the textile industry for 42 years. He was elected chairman of the board in 1962 and also serves as a member of the Management Committee and Executive-Finance Committee.

He joined Burlington on January 1, 1952 as controller of the company. He was elected to the board of directors in 1953 and has served as executive vice president and senior vice president. Prior to joining Burlington, Rauch served in several executive positions with New England textile companies, including the American Thread Company, where he was controller, executive vice president, and a director.

Mr. Rauch and his wife, the former Alice Atkins, reside in Greensboro, N.C., location of Burlington's executive offices. They have a daughter, Mrs. John Ferris of Manhasset, L.I., N.Y., and a son who is currently a student at the Harvard Business School. Mr. and Mrs. Rauch are members of Holy Trinity Episcopal Church in Greensboro.

Mr. Campbell, who also is a member of the board of directors at Itek, was graduated from Bentley in 1948. He served on the college's evening school faculty from 1956 to 1958 and recently was elected a corporator of the institution.

Before affiliating with Itek, he was associated with Laboratory for Electronics, Inc., serving successively as corporate controller, treasurer, vice president and director, and vice president and general manager.

EDWIN D. CAMPBELL

After his graduation from Bentley, he joined the Boston office of the accounting firm of Arthur Anderson & Co. Campbell is a member of both the Massachusetts Society of Certified Public Accountants and the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants. He holds a C.P.A. certificate from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

In addition, he is currently serving on the boards of directors of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts, the Massachusetts Federation of Taxpayers Associations, Inc., and the Massachusetts Association for Mental Health, Inc. He is also a vice president of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts.

A native of Boston, he resides in Carlisle with his wife and two children.

Bentley trustee awarded high honor by agricultural industry in Chicago

JAMES F. DONOVAN, a trustee of Bentley College since 1948, was awarded one of the agricultural industry's highest honors at a testimonial dinner in Chicago on February 19th. His portrait was placed along side the industry greats of the last 200 years in the Saddle and Sirloin Club's Agricultural Hall of Fame.

This honor was bestowed upon Mr. Donovan in recognition of his leadership in the agricultural industry as a director of Armour & Company and as chairman of the Union Stock Yard & Transit Company of Chicago, often called "The Chicago Stock Yards." In addition, through his directorship of the Live Stock National Bank of Chicago, his financial acumen has extended itself to the benefit of hundreds of small banks serving the live stock industry throughout the midwestern farm area.

Mr. Donovan's career started in 1918 as an employee of the brokerage house of Frederick Henry Prince — F. H. Prince & Company — in Boston. Mr. Prince, one of the great financiers of the 20th century was the son of Frederick O. Prince, former Mayor of Boston. This relationship has extended into another generation. James F. Donovan is now co-trustee with William Wood Prince of the Prince Family Trusts and co-partner with William Wood Prince of the industries and financial accomplishments which today stand as a memorial to Frederick Henry Prince.

In 1920, Mr. Donovan entered an accounting school in Boston operated by Harry C. Bentley, often referred to by Mr. Donovan as his cotutor with Mr. Prince in his business education. As one of the first graduates of Bentley College, then the Bentley School of Accounting and Finance, Mr. Donovan has proclaimed his appreciation for his training through a longtime friendship with Mr. Bentley, and conscientious fidelity to his appointment as trustee.

IT SEEMS hard to believe that it took me 17 years to cross Boylston Street. But in 1948, I sat in classroom 100 of the Bentley School of Accounting and Finance, frequently glancing out the window onto what we jokingly called the “campus” — railroad make-up yards on the south side of Boylston Street, and in 1965, moved into the Convention Services Manager’s office of the Sheraton-Boston Hotel now standing on the old “campus.” I feel as though I stood still and the New Boston moved in around me.

I am the only member of the hotel staff who was part of the hotel ground-breaking in July 1962, the War Memorial Auditorium ground-breaking earlier that same year, and, three years previously, the ground-breaking for the Prudential Center. And, further, I was assigned to the hotel staff before Sheraton Corporation of America signed the lease in May of last year.

In fact, my growth with the Prudential Center in its entirety is as close as I’ll ever get to motherhood, and I believe I have had my share of labor pains along the way.

Nine years after I was graduated from Bentley, we only heard ideas — radical at the time — of what the New Boston would be. Now, after eight years have passed, less is demanded of our imaginations: directly below the 31-acre Prudential Center the last leg of the Massachusetts Turnpike extension hurries traffic into the heart of down-town Boston. Soaring 750 feet above the Boston skyline is the tallest building in the United States outside of New York City. Clustered around this pinnacle is the 29-story Sheraton-Boston to the west, the City’s $12-million War Memorial Auditorium to the northwest, four commercial buildings grouped at the foot of the tower, and to the east, construction has been started for two 26-story apartment buildings, slated for completion in 1966. In addition, in the Eastern sector, plans are underway for a multi-level Lord

& Taylor specialty store.

But the old railroad yard is not the only thing that has changed around me. In the five years that I have been a director of the Bentley Alumni Association, I have seen some changes in the alma mater as well. At a time when I was wearing all of my hats at once — I volunteered to the War Memorial Auditorium Dedication Committee to assist with the formal opening ceremonies last February — I was in charge of the exhibit set-up on the Auditorium’s second floor. It was on this floor that Bentley displayed a magnificent architectural relief model of the new Waltham campus to be situated on the old Lyman estate. This single event gave me a special awareness of how evenly Bentley was keeping pace with the growth and blossoming of the New Boston.

I am sure I will again get a chance to have this special feeling of everything meeting under one roof when in June, 1967, Bentley holds its 50th Anniversary Banquet in the Sheraton-Boston.

Former college president paints colorful landscape

donates life-like oil to Somerville church

Scene of oil painting made by President Emeritus Maurice M. Lindsay and donated by him to the Grace Baptist Church in Somerville. Mr. Lindsay over the years has painted many landscapes, seascapes, and harbor scenes of the New England coast.

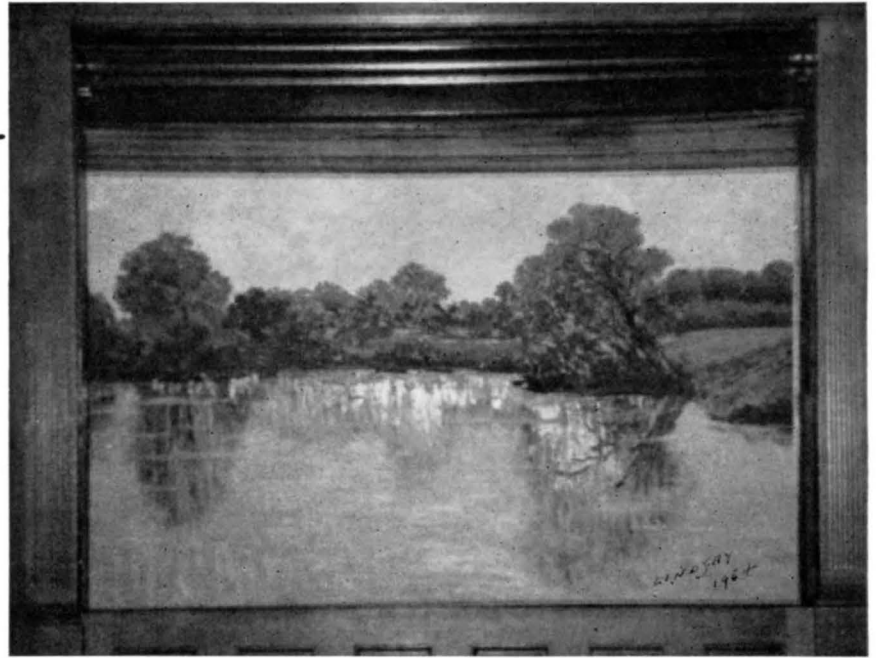

FOR alumni living in Somerville and in cities near by, an exciting art experience awaits them. Hanging in the Grace Baptist Church on Cross Street in Somerville is a huge 62-inch by 108-inch life-like and beautiful oil painting called "River Jordan Showing Place Where Christ Was Baptized."

What may be of great interest to alumni viewing it is that this magnificent rendition was created by Maurice M. Lindsay, president emeritus of Bentley College, who donated the painting when the church rebuilt its interior last summer. The black-and-white reproduction on this page does not do justice to the beautiful color tones of the oil, which provides an appropriate background for the Baptistry that is in full view of everyone seated in the Sanctuary.

The River Jordan falls about 4,000 feet in its course of 130 miles, and Mr. Lindsay has caught the water in gentle motion at this particular spot.

The former Bentley president had completed more than 40 years of service to the college prior to his retirement in 1961 and has been acknowledged as a dedicated teacher and administrator who has probably trained more C.P.A.'s than any other man in New England.

A prolific artist in his retirement years, he started his creative endeavors in 1948 following an operation when he needed exercising for his hands. At present, he continues his retirement profession in a studio located in the Dove Cote Building at the Waltham campus.

Lindsay Scholarship Fund now reaches $12,000 level following recent donations

THE Lindsay Scholarship Fund was increased $1,500 to reach a present level of $12,000 as a result of donations made during Ground-Breaking Day on April 24.

For the 11 donors a special receipt has been forwarded in the form of an oil painting made by Mr. Lindsay himself. This is the former Bentley president's way of personally thanking those who give to the fund, which now is able to award a scholarship in the amount of $400. When the Fund's goal of $25,000 is reached, an award of $1,000 will be presented to a senior who shows considerable capability as well as financial need.

Thus, if a person donates to the Lindsay Scholarship Fund, he is helping a student complete his education.

The size of Mr. Lindsay's gift to the donor varies with the amount given: $30 — 12-in. x 16-in., $60 — 16-in. x 20-in., $75 — 18-in. x 24-in., $125 — 20-in. x 30-in., $250 — 24-in. x 36-in., and $500 — any size the donor wishes.

Scholarships awarded to 14 school seniors

FOURTEEN high school seniors were awarded partial scholarships for the college year 1965-66 according to an announcement by Professor Earle E. Haskins, chairman of the Faculty Committee on Student Aid.

The awards are based on demonstrated financial need, high scholastic achievement, high potential as indicated by the admissions testing program of the college, and recommendation of the principal and/or guidance director.

Progress reported on new campus

by Rae D. Anderson
Senior Vice President and Dean

THE arrival of the bulldozers, steam shovels, blasting equipment, and heavy dump trucks of our site developer, ETL Corporation, in mid-April, signaled the passing of the Waltham North Campus from the status of a planned or proposed project to the first step in the construction of a new home for Bentley College. The site development work includes the construction of a road system almost one and one-half miles in length, the installation of water lines and hydrants, the creation of a sanitary sewer system, and the construction of a drainage system to serve the road system, parking areas, as well as the several buildings.

The site work also included creating a plateau approximately 500 feet in length and 250 feet in width to serve as an academic quadrangle. The quadrangle is at a uniform elevation of 218 feet. The Baker-Vanguard Library (foundation already excavated) is situated in the center of the quadrangle with its tower rising 130 feet above grade. The four corners of the quadrangle will be the site of the two classroom buildings, the Faculty-Administration Building, and the Dining Hall. The creation of the quadrangle necessitated considerable cutting and filling since the elevation ranged from 228 feet to 196 feet.

On June 30, the rough road work was finished—including a new access road to Beaver Street at the eastern extremity of the property. Utilities will be installed in the summer months, and, by September 30, the site work should be complete—a project costing over $500,000—made possible by the generous response of the alumni and friends to our Annual Giving program and the generosity of those who believe in what Bentley is striving to achieve.

The present time table calls for firming up building design plans this summer, working drawings and specifications by the architects in the fall and winter months, with building construction to begin in the late spring of 1966, and full occupancy in September of 1968. True, bold and ambitious plans, but fully attainable.

Town and Gown Encounter

Shortly after the site work began, it developed that our neighbors of Forest Street objected to the location of the dormitory units to be built in Phase I—overlooking the natural pond bordering Forest Street—in the belief that they might prove to be a disruptive influence. Following a meeting at City Hall, conducted under the aegis of the City Council, at which President Morison stated the views and position of the College and a number of our neighbors expressed their views, the President and I met with representatives of the Forest Street Neighborhood Civic Association in an effort to find a solution that would take into consideration the long-range interests of the College and fully recognize the sincere and serious concerns of our neighbors.

Our architects were given the assignment of studying alternative locations for the dormitory units, giving due consideration to aesthetics, future building locations, and the logical placement of buildings in light of student usage and movement. After much study and innumerable conferences, an alternative location was found for the dormitory units to be constructed in Phase I—a 600-foot strip of land in a grove of oak trees in the southeast section of the campus. In a public statement, released to the press on June 18, we reviewed the problem, stated the position of the College, and announced the relocation of the dormitory units and other modifications of the campus plan. We also pointed out that future dormitory units to be constructed in Phase II might have to be located in the Forest Street pond area, but, if this proves necessary, adequate set back will be provided and the area will be fully screened with evergreens. In our first Town-Gown encounter, a new experience for Bentley, we strove to cooperate to the full and to seek a solution that recognized the concerns of our neighbors but, was not incompatible with the long-range interests of the College.

Mr. and Mrs. Bentley go to new residence in N.C.

Harry Clark Bentley, founder and president emeritus of Bentley College, and Mrs. Bentley are shown leaving the Ritz Carlton Hotel, Boston, on January 20 for their new residence in North Carolina. The cold New England winters prompted them to seek a warmer climate in order to more fully enjoy their retirement years. Mr. Bentley celebrated his 88th birthday on February 28 shortly after he and Mrs. Bentley arrived at their new home.

President Thomas L. Morison and Henry E. Rauch, chairman of the College's Golden Anniversary Fund campaign, recently visited our Founder and brought him up to date on the exciting developments taking place at the new campus in Waltham.

learn and his native devotion, coupled with his accounting skill, enabled him to rise from the bottom of the brokerage firm to a place in the Hall of Fame next to Frederick Henry Prince. From bookkeeper through accountant, controller and treasurer to chief executive, he developed a career which commenced in Boston and led to Chicago as financial guide of more than 25 business entities. Mr. Donovan, a fellow Bentley man and accountant, stands out in our profession.

As James F. Donovan, citizen, he and his wife and six children reside on a 12-acre farm in Wheaton, Illinois. He has and does devote himself to many civic, educational and charitable associations and endeavors.

In summarizing the qualities of Mr. Donovan, Mr. Prince said, "Mostly I have spoken tonight about actual events that have occurred in the life of James Francis Donovan, but events do not portray the person. It is difficult for me to describe the great qualities of this man, because my feeling towards him is of such a personal nature. But of all his outstanding qualities, certainly loyalty is in the foremost."

Bentley president honored with citation

PRESIDENT Thomas L. Morison was honored by the Cambridge School of Boston on June 3 when he was one of five outstanding leaders to be awarded a citation. He also delivered the commencement address to the first class to be graduated after the School's full and formal accreditation as a Junior College of Business.

The Citation of Merit to him read, "In recognition of outstanding and meritorious service in behalf of higher education and the development of truly qualified professionals."

President Morison talked to the largest graduating class in the school's history about the importance of continuing education.

"The continuance of education after graduation," he said, "is a 'must' for all who would understand the importance of a life-time of keeping abreast of our times."

Reunion and Commencement draw re

THE 11th annual Reunion Day attracted a record-breaking turnout on June 5.

The special event for returning alumni began with a barbecue luncheon on the Waltham campus. This was followed by the Alumni Council Meeting, Annual Meeting of the Alumni Association, and Class Meetings, and a tour for the ladies.

COMMENCEMENT exercises drew a capacity audience at the Back Bay Theatre in Boston where the largest class in the history of Bentley College received degrees and certificates.

Addressing the new graduates and their families was Maurice M. Lindsay, president emeritus of Bentley. Many of the seniors were members of the Freshman Class in his final year of office four years ago.

President Thomas L. Morison presided at the 46th commencement exercises and gave the traditional charge to the seniors. Rae D. Anderson, senior vice president and dean, presented the candidates for graduation. He was assisted by E. William Dandes, associate dean, and Edward H. Pendergast, assistant dean. Rev. John J. Collins, S.J., of Boston College, gave the invocation.

Mr. Lindsay told his audience that regardless of man's propensity for change, accounting skills will continue to be in demand wherever financial involvements exist.

Bentley Honor and Falcon Societies Established to recognize achievement

by Edward H. Pendergast
Assistant Dean

THE importance of high scholastic achievement has once more been recognized by the College in the inauguration of two new societies. A beautiful solid gold key, inscribed BENTLEY HONOR SOCIETY and bearing the seal of the college is the tangible evidence of membership in this organization.

To become a member as a sophomore, one must have maintained an average of A minus for the first three semesters of his college career. Five members of the class of 1967 have become charter members. As a junior, the requirement is a five semester average of higher than B plus. It is a great achievement that seventeen members of the class of 1966 are so honored. A senior needs seven semesters, with an average of higher than B, to qualify, and twenty-one of that class now have become members.

The second of the new organizations is the Bentley FALCON SOCIETY. One will not see many of the emblems of this club around the campus, for only ten persons are authorized to wear these at this time.

Again a solid gold pin, this time in the form of a falcon, the school mascot, is given. Superimposed on this background is a large dark blue block B which bears, as an inscription, the name of the society.

The qualifications for membership are most rigorous and encompass both scholastic excellence and meaningful participation in co-curricular activities. The candidates are nominated by their classmates. The potential list is then turned over to the Recorder, and all who have less than a B average are eliminated.

Then the difficult task begins. Students, faculty, and administrators are canvassed by the committee on co-curricular activities for information and background material concerning these candidates. The committee, when it meets, may each year elect up to six seniors, four juniors, two sophomores, and such honorary members as it deems best qualified.

50 athletes in five sports honored at annual banquet

by Elwood N. Shields
Director of Athletics

THE alumni shared the spotlight with 50 varsity athletes in five sports at the Second Annual All Sports Banquet held at New England Life Hall on May 13.

Approximately 50 alumni were present as the first Edward J. Powers Award given to the outstanding student-athlete was presented to Peter Dufour of the ski team. Mr. Powers, president of the Boston Garden and trustee and alumnus of the college, made the presentation. This award is donated by the Alumni Association and will be given annually.

Basketball Captain Robert Fisher was the recipient of a special President's Award presented by College President Thomas L. Morison for his outstanding contribution to the college. Awards also were given to the Most Valuable and Most Improved Players in each sport.

The basketball team, for the second year in a row, was one of the nation's highest scoring teams. It averaged 91 points per game while compiling an 18-5 record. The squad also won the Ricker College Invitational Tournament in Houlton, Me.

The ski team placed second behind Princeton in the strong New England Intercollegiate Ski Conference. Captain Gene Gilman was the top skier in the Conference.

The cross country team won five and lost five in a building year, competing against such colleges as Tufts, Holy Cross, and Bowdoin.

The golf team had a disappointing 5-9 slate this spring. However, the team finished strong, winning the Southern New England Invitational Tournament.

The tennis team, although winless, showed promise of improvement in the coming years.

In two years of formal competition the varsity teams have compiled a composite record of 57 wins and 42 losses.

Bentley's athletic program is one in which our alumni can and should take pride. We look for increased alumni support and welcome attendance at any of our contests.

Edward J. Powers, D 26, president of Boston Garden, presents the first annual trophy named in his honor for outstanding athletic and scholastic achievement to Peter Dufour, a senior and member of the ski team.

87 undergrads make trip to the United Nations

by Stanley A. Taylor
Assistant Professor of Government

EIGHTY-SEVEN Bentley College students visited the United Nations last January, accompanied by Edward H. Pendergast, assistant dean and chairman of the department of law; Dr. Arthur W. Kennedy, associate professor of humanities; Mr. Roger K. Warlick, assistant professor of humanities; and the writer.

We started the morning with an hour briefing session at the US Mission to the UN at its beautiful headquarters near the UN. The briefing officer was Mr. W. H. Ziehl who is acting as special adviser to Mr. Adlai Stevenson on the current financial problem. The entire US Mission treated us very graciously.

Next we crossed the street to the United Nations and broke into small groups for tours of the UN. This was enjoyable for all, especially for the male Bentley students who found the international corps of guides very charming.

Following that we were served a fascinating and delicious dinner in the Delegates' Dining Room. This was an experience long to be remembered by the students.

We then began two hours of briefing sessions in the UN itself. For this the Visitors' Service made available to us one of the regular large conference rooms with all of the circular seating, microphones, and splendor of the General Assembly room. When I took the students into the room many of them balked thinking we were in the wrong room since we were not actual diplomats.

Our first briefing was from M. de Lacoste, a young member of the Permanent French Mission to the UN, whose ability to handle difficult questions and to present, in a simple manner, intricate problems amazed everyone. I believe the students were more charmed by him than anyone.

Following him, we heard from several other dignitaries. Never has so much factual information from persons on the "inside" been dispensed to Bentley students in such brief time and with such clarity and charm.

In sum, it was an outstanding event. Many of the students told me that it was the highpoint of their college career.
